

Gill Furniss MP, Shadow Secretary for Steel, Postal Affairs and Consumer protection, with Orgreave supporters at the 2018 Labour Party Conference.

And I was proud to speak on behalf of the campaign and those I hope to represent in the ex mining communities of North East Derbyshire about our campaigning activities.

I spoke on the failure of three Tory Home Secretaries to act and how today the fight we had then against trade unions is still a fight today. I also said loud and clear that Orgreave is not history.

We face the same battles now against the working class and we should take inspiration from the collectivism that our mining communities showed then to unite and galvanise us against this Tory government now.

OTJC at The World Transformed

OTJC also had an opportunity to speak at a packed The World Transformed event at the Class

Injustice meeting along with other campaigners Terry Renshaw from Shrewsbury 24, Sheila Coleman from Hillsborough Justice, Jacqui Haynes from Grenfell Justice and Roy Bentham from Blacklisting. The Shadow Attorney General, Shami Chakrabarti also spoke at this event.

I also spoke on behalf of OTJC about support and solidarity with other campaigns and the need for an Orgreave Inquiry.

Only a Labour government will order an inquiry into Orgreave

The OTJC has gained overwhelming support from the Labour and Trade Union movement. The Labour Party now, as a party of socialists and trade unionists, stands firm with us in our call for an inquiry.

Labour Party support is here to stay

THE Orgreave campaign is pleased that the Labour Party now, under Jeremy Corbyn's leadership, has a manifesto commitment to an inquiry into Orgreave.

The PLP of today support this, but to win a Labour government, we need to win marginal seats.

And rest assured! Labour Prospective Parliamentary Candidates across the country in key marginals will not only support us when elected but are fighting right now to make this so.

I'm so proud to be the PPC in North East Derbyshire. Please support us, your comrades, and get us all elected to have a Labour government to deliver the justice we need.
